Trifecta Clinical Revolutionizes Training with Voices in Life Sciences

Los Angeles (August 19, 2014) - Trifecta Clinical, a leading global provider of online clinical investigator training, is excited to announce the launch of Voices in Life Sciences (VLS) at the 2014 Disruptive Innovations conference in Boston.

“Last year at Disruptive Innovations, I presented the idea of applying processes and methods used in Independent film to the training challenges we face in clinical development,” said Dave Young, CEO of Trifecta. “Julie Crawford, our Director of Operations, led an interdisciplinary team to take this crazy idea and make it a reality. I’m honored to work with such an incredible team.”

Voices in Life Sciences (VLS) is dedicated to advancing clinical knowledge, improving training and revolutionizing the pharmaceutical industry. VLS seeks clinical professionals with deep expertise who want to engage in problem solving, influence topics within their profession or have a unique solution to an industry challenge. As award-winning producers, Trifecta Clinical transforms their specialized knowledge into best-in-class training content for global distribution, earning them financial reward and widespread recognition from influential industry leaders.

VLS will open a call for submissions on January 2, 2015. Interested candidates will be asked to submit their content via VLS website for judging. Trifecta will produce the winning training content into a video, which will be showcased at an annual film festival and be made available for purchase.
